Save Our Planet—Secure Our Childhood

When I was a child, I took advantage of the beauty I was surrounded with. All I wanted to do was play video games or be with my friends. I'm Mike, and I'm a club promoter turned environmental activist. I got weary of my life in the city and connected back to my roots, to the child who was born in the country, to parents who owned a field of land surrounded by nothing but nature.

I'm here in front of you today as a challenge—a challenge to our complacency with the death of our only planet. I am Mike, and I'm growing a non-profit organization that needs your help to achieve our global mission, but most of all, I'm here to make you understand why this is my life mission and essentially share with you the essence of who I am and what I'm here for.

Conglomerates and companies don't care, and they don't seem to be changing. We, humans, are consuming to the point of destruction. Our natural resources dwindle, our trees are set ablaze, and our current lifestyles are eating up what's already dwindling. I've come here today to speak about my mission, who I am, and what I hope to achieve by connecting with those in the audience today. So, please hear me out.
